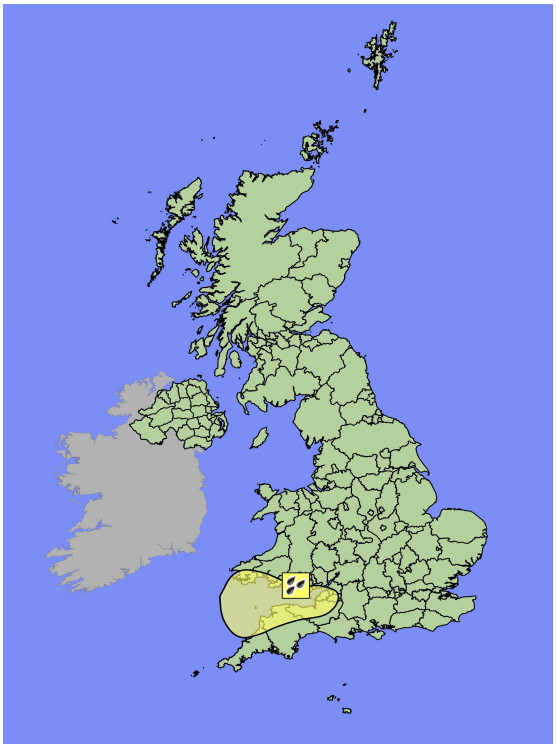
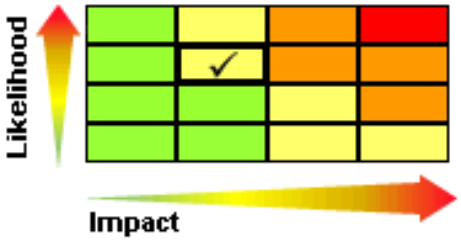
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A stream of heavy showers will continue to run through the Bristol Channel for the next few hours. Incidents due to hail have been reported, and this risk continues for a few hours yet, although it should be stressed that hail heavy enough to cause problems is, by its very nature, localised and also temporary.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 21:00 on Sun, 27th Jan 2013 until 01:00 on Mon, 28th Jan 2013

Further heavy showers and thunderstorms will bring the risk of localised surface water flooding. Perhaps of more concern will be heavy hail showers, which may cause local problems with temporarily very slippery surfaces and reduced visibility.

The public should be aware of localised hazardous driving conditions for the rest of Sunday evening, perhaps into the early hours of Monday.
